production process

Material Selection:

Choose appropriate materials for the frame, canopy, sidewalls, and accessories.
Consider factors such as durability, weather resistance, fire retardancy, and aesthetics.

Frame Fabrication:

Manufacture the frame components using aluminum or steel tubes and connectors.
Cut, bend, weld, and assemble the frame according to the design specifications.
Test the frame's structural integrity and stability.

Fabrication of Canopy and Sidewalls:

Cut and sew the canopy fabric and sidewall panels based on the tent's dimensions.

Apply any custom graphics, branding, or logos to the fabric.

Seam-seal the fabric to enhance water resistance.

4. Quality Check and Final Touches:

Inspect the assembled tent for any issues, including fabric tension, frame stability, and accessory functionality.

Make any necessary adjustments and final touches to ensure the tent is ready for the event.

Provide on-site technical support during the event to address any unforeseen issues or client requests.

5. Dismantling and Storage:

After the event, carefully dismantle the tent and pack all components.

Store the components in a clean and dry environment for future use.

6. Maintenance and Repairs:

Perform routine maintenance on the tent components, including cleaning, fabric maintenance, and frame inspections.

Make any necessary repairs or replacements to ensure the tent's longevity.

7. Client Feedback:

Gather feedback from the client regarding the tent's performance, setup process, and overall satisfaction.
