About the classification and style of tents

The choice and use of camping tents should first understand its subdivision and style, at present, there are many varieties of tents on the market In terms of classification, outdoor travelers like to divide them into two categories:

One is: mountain tent, mainly designed to cope with more harsh conditions, performance indicators focus on wind resistance,

Rain proof, high strength, more sophisticated in the selection of materials, more complex in the production process, belongs to the high-grade account

It is suitable for mountaineering and the complex climate in which the expedition takes place.

The other category is what we commonly call, tourism type, designed for general outing/camping, more in the selection of materials

Pay attention to the economy, the production process is relatively simple, belongs to the low grade tent, can be used in the general environment Camping activities.
