Advantages:

Tents are made of waterproof materials to ensure water and moisture resistance, and durable, tear resistant, UV resistant, mildew resistant. The seams of the tent fabric are heat-sealed or welded to prevent water from seeping out. Any zippers, fasteners or caps on the tent are designed to be waterproof or equipped with protective covers to prevent water infiltration. The roof of the tent uses a slight slope or slope to allow rainwater to drain quickly and efficiently. Some heavy-duty waterproof tents are equipped with built-in gutters and drainage systems to direct rainwater away from the tent and prevent water from collecting around the base. Tent frames are made of strong materials such as aluminum or steel to provide strength and stability in windy and rainy conditions
